

April 7, 2008

To the members of the Pima County Bond Committee:

There seems to be some confusion about what the Initiative said. Please reread it and remind people that the words "...at least..." did not signify that horse racing ended after 25 years. The public supports horse racing. In competition with the rodeo and golf tournament 9300 people attended the last day of horse racing this year. The Initiative was passed by 62% of the voters. Even the Advisory committee recommended that horse racing at Rillito continue until a new race track is built. The National Historic Site and year around community use of the grandstand have not been discussed publically. Please note that the I-10 site benefits soft ball as well as soccer.

Ed Moore, former Pima County Supervisor